Education will play a critical role in the post-witness era. It will be the primary means by which we transmit the memory of past genocides to future generations.

Education about human rights and genocides can help us to build a more just and equitable world. By teaching students about the importance of human rights, we can help to create a generation of young people who are committed to respect the rights of others.

Human rights and genocide education is not just about the past. It is also about the future. By educating students about human rights, we can help to create a more just and equitable world for all.
