In her groundbreaking new book, Carmen Maria Machado explores the boundaries of human experience through the lens of machine learning and artificial intelligence. Machine Learning New And Collected Stories is a collection of stories that are both deeply personal and universally resonant, examining the ways in which technology is shaping our lives and our relationships.

In the title story, "Machine Learning," a woman falls in love with an AI chatbot. As their relationship deepens, she begins to question the nature of love and identity in the digital age. In "The Husband Stitch," a woman undergoes a painful medical procedure that is designed to make her more pleasurable for her husband. The story explores the complex and often contradictory ways in which women's bodies are valued and controlled.

Machado's writing is both lyrical and incisive, and her stories are populated with unforgettable characters who grapple with the challenges and complexities of modern life. Machine Learning New And Collected Stories is a powerful and thought-provoking collection that will stay with you long after you finish reading it.

Reviews

"Machado's stories are electric, haunting, and deeply unsettling. She writes about the ways in which technology is changing our lives, but she also writes about the human heart, and the ways in which we love and lose." -

NPR

"Machado is a master storyteller, and Machine Learning New And Collected Stories is her best work yet. These stories are essential reading for anyone who wants to understand the world we live in." - The New York Times

"Machado's writing is brilliant, provocative, and utterly unforgettable. Machine Learning New And Collected Stories is a must-read for anyone who cares about literature." - The Guardian
